The musical score consists of two parts, each with two staves. The first staff (1e stem) and second staff (2e stem) are shown for the first part. The lyrics for the first part are:

Should auld ac - quaint - ance be for - got, and
And there's a hand my trus - ty friend And nev - er bro't to mind, to mind? Should auld ac - quaint - ance gie's a hand o' thine, o' thine! We'll tak' a right gude -

The second part begins at measure 6, indicated by a dashed line. It has two staves. The lyrics for the second part are:

be for - got, and days of auld lang syne? For auld lang
- wil - lie waugt For auld lang syne. For auld lang

At measure 10, the lyrics continue:

yne, my dear, for auld lang syne, lang syne,

[12] The lyrics continue from measure 12:

we'll tak' a cup o' kind - ness yet for auld lang syne.

De tekst verwijst naar de herinneringen aan oude tijden, waaraan men gezamenlijk terugdenkt onder het genot van een goed glas.
